EXPLOSION ON STEAMER KILLS THREE, SCORE HURT

Fatal Blast On Eastern Sailor; Men Were Trapped

FIGHT IN HOLD Shanghai Fire Fighters Do Heroic Rescue Work

Three Chinese workmen are dead and nearly a score of others were injured as a result of an explosion which occurred aboard the trans-Pacific freighter, Eastern Sailor, at the International Dock shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The injured men were at work in a small compartment in the forepeak of the vessel, repairing damage occasioned when the Eastern Sailor last week collided with and sank the liner Sakaki Maru in the Whangpoo. The only entrance to the compartment was through a small man-hole and it was only after heroic work extending over a period of more than an hour that members of the Shanghai Fire Brigade succeeded in removing the last of the victims from the fume-filled cell in which they had been trapped.

The exact cause of the blast is unknown. According to one report, the workmen, about twenty in number, were repairing the damaged steel plates in the vessel's hull with an oxy-acetylene welder. Ventilation in the compartment was poor, and it is presumed that the explosion was due to the bituminous fumes present.

When the blast came, the men fought among themselves to make their way up through the manhole. One man succeeded in getting half-way through the manhole, but collapsed and blocked the way out for his fellows.

The Shanghai Municipal Fire Department was notified and a detachment from the Yangtszepoo station under Assistant Officer Buttigill was the first to respond. Another detachment from Central Station under Chief Officer Pett, and the Customs fire float also went to the scene.

The firemen, headed by Assistant Officer Buttigill, donned smoke masks and handkerchiefs and lowered themselves through the manhole. Within the compartment, the heat was so strong that the men were nearly overcome. Two of the injured men had gone out of their heads and fought their rescuers, and it was an hour before the last of the score of victims was found wedged in the bow of the vessel and pulled up to the deck by a rope.

First aid was administered to the injured men by the ship's officers and dock officials. One of the men was already dead when he was brought up from the forepeak chamber, and several others terribly burned and suffering from internal injuries. Dr. H. C. Patrick was called and ordered fifteen of the men removed to the Shantung Road Hospital. Stretchers were improvised from doors and ladders, and the injured were removed to a Blue Funnel tow boat which brought them to the Nanking Road Jetty. Brigade lorries were in waiting and removed the men to the hospital where two more of them died a short time later.

CHANG HU WILL RETURN TO OFFICE WITH BODYGUARD

Mukden Chief Will Send Military Escort To Prevent Arrest, Says Report

Mr. Chang Hu, the Minister of Finance, accused of bribery by Tung Kung, the Minister of Justice, is returning to his office with a bodyguard of 200 Panchen troops, according to the Dah Tong News Bureau. The report states that the Mukden warlord, Chang Tso-lin, insists that Chang cancel his leave of absence and defy the action of the Justice Minister.

Chang Tso-lin holds that the charges were unjust and the 200 soldiers, to be selected from among the crack fighters of his aide-de-camp, General Chang Ching-shan, are ordered to fire to kill if an attempt is made to arrest the Finance Minister.

Supplement To Pact Ratified

(Reuter's Service)
Washington, March 27.—The Senate today unanimously ratified a supplementary Pacific treaty excluding the mainland of Japan from the scope of the Pacific Treaty.

London, March 28.—Washington despatches show that the main interest in the Senate's ratification of the Pacific Treaty lies in the demonstration of America's continued treaty-making power in spite of constitutional obstacles. Regarding the Treaty itself, neither in the press nor elsewhere is opposition manifested except as regards the details, many holding that China should have been included and provision made to include Russia later. Otherwise, there is general agreement that the Treaty is a big improvement compared with the Anglo-Japanese Alliance.

Reservations to the Treaty will certainly be forthcoming from Paris, both in the Chamber and the Senate, but the prospect of any serious opposition is negligible.

Washington, March 28.—The Senate yesterday adopted without a roll-call a reservation declaring that domestic questions are excluded from the scope of both the Pacific and supplementary treaty.

LOBINGIER UPHELD BY HIGHER COURT IN FLEMING CASE

Shanghai Attorney Must Serve Six Months' Jail Term For Contempt, Federal Body Rules—Washington Inquiry Still Pending

Information that Mr. William S. Fleming, Shanghai attorney, had lost the appeal which he had taken to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals at San Francisco from the judgment of Judge Charles S. Lobingier of the United States Court for China sentencing him to six months in jail for contempt of court, came to Shanghai in a special news dispatch received yesterday.

Mr. Fleming is senior member of the law firm of Fleming, Davies and Bryan. He has already served 11 days of the six months' sentence, and is now en route from Vancouver on the Empress of Russia. He is due in Shanghai on April 3. As a result of the ruling of the higher court, Mr. Fleming will be obliged to serve the remainder of his sentence unless he is permitted to take a further appeal to the United States Supreme Court. Attorneys here differ as to whether this is legally permissible.

The case was argued before the Circuit Court of Appeals at San Francisco, consisting of Judge Gilbert Hunt, and a sitting district judge, on February 23. It is understood that Mr. Fleming prepared his own brief, assisted by Mr. Melnery, one of San Francisco's most noted attorneys. Judge Lobingier was represented by the law firm of Chickering and Gregory. Neither Mr. Fleming nor Judge Lobingier were present during the hearing according to information received here. Both were supposed to be in Washington where the more vital question was being heard.

Mr. Fleming, in his brief, asserted that in the first place he had not committed contempt of court, and in the second place argued that Judge Lobingier had exceeded his authority in sentencing him to six months imprisonment. Mr. Fleming's argument was based on the assumption that under the provisions under which the court was established, dating back to the old Consular Court, Judge Lobingier was authorized to commit anyone for contempt of court for a period not exceeding 48 hours.

In reply to Mr. Fleming's argument attorneys for Judge Lobingier asserted that Mr. Fleming had clearly and grossly committed contempt of court when he arose in the court and read affidavits accusing Judge Lobingier of half a dozen criminal offenses.

They asserted that not only was it contempt of court but one of the most flagrant cases on record in the history of American jurisprudence.

During the argument all the important contempt cases ever heard in any of the higher American courts were reviewed including the nationally famous Terry case in which a woman was sentenced to six months in jail for arising at the conclusion of her trial and demanding of the judge: "How much did you get for this decision?"

Judge Lobingier's attorneys asserted that Mr. Fleming knew he was committing a gross contempt when he arose in court that day last July, but that he had premeditated the entire affair and was prepared to serve the 48 hours in jail, which—as he thought—was the longest term that could be given him.

Both briefs were long and extremely technical legal arguments.

MR. FLEMING DUE SHORTLY
Mr. Fleming is due to arrive in Shanghai on April 3 having sailed from Vancouver on the Empress of Russia.

While the news has been expected it came as a surprise to Shanghai because of the early decision the court reached. The Circuit Court of Appeals is so crowded with cases that in many instances it takes from three to six months before a decision is given.

It is believed that extraordinary attention was given the Fleming-Lobingier case because of the urgent need of having Judge Lobingier, or some other judge, in Shanghai to carry on the work of the American Court, already overcrowded with cases.

Mr. Stirling Fessenden, who was in Washington watching the investigation as the senior member of the Shanghai bar, on being informed of the decision expressed the opinion that it was the first word of what would eventually be a complete vindication of the judge.

Mr. Fleming was sentenced to serve six months in the American prison here for contempt of court on July 25 and was released from custody on August 10 on bail in the sum of Gold $2,000. The prison sentence was suspended pending a review of the contempt proceedings by the Ninth District Court of Appeals in California, to which the case was taken on writ of error.

It will be remembered that the penalty of six months imprisonment was imposed at the time that Attorney Fleming was on trial on a charge of criminal libel filed on complaint of Mr. Stirling Fessenden of the firm of Fessenden and Holcomb and after he had read in Court an affidavit in which he made charges against Judge Lobingier, and a whole group of court officials and others.

In this connection eight affidavits were filed on August 9 denying allegations contained in the document that Attorney Fleming read. These affidavits were filed by Maj. C. F. Holcomb, United States District Attorney; Mr. P. J. Schuhl, United States Commissioner; Mr. N. E. Lorton, then United States Marshal; Mr. H. D. Rodger, Assistant U. S. District Attorney; and Attorneys Stirling Fessenden, Leonard Hartigan, J. R. Browne and H. W. Mel.

Judge Lobingier left for the United States when the charges against him were filed, and was followed a few days later by Mr. Fleming on another vessel. At the time it was described as a race between the two to reach Washington first and present opposing sides of the controversy.

JUDGE ORDERS RELEASE
The order that enabled Mr. Fleming to give bail and be released is incorporated in a ruling that Judge Lobingier handed down on a motion for reduction of sentence that Mr. Fleming presented after he had been committed to prison. The ruling dealt at length with a contention that Mr. Fleming advanced that the Court in inflicting punishment for contempt had overruled Mr. Fleming's motion for reduction of sentence the Court pointed out that one adjudged guilty of contempt is not entitled to bail as of right but the Court expressed unwillingness to place any obstacle in the way of a review of the contempt proceedings by a higher court and therefore the privilege to give bail is granted.

The two charges of criminal libel made against Attorney Fleming on complaints of Mr. Stirling Fessenden and Mr. Manual Conception have never been heard. A motion for a change of venue made by Mr. Fleming when brought to trial on the first of these charges is yet to be ruled upon by the Court before the trial can take place.

Unification And Army Reduction, China's Main Needs, Says Schurman

U.S. Minister Delivers Stirring Address At Banquet In His Honor At Astor House—Sees Need For Self Help

That the world powers represented at the Washington Conference very nearly approached the limit of what foreign nations have it in their power to do for China and that the destiny of China is now in her own hands was the keynote of the address made last night by the Hon. Jacob Gould Schurman, U. S. Minister to China at the banquet tendered him at the Astor House by the American Chamber of Commerce and the American Association.

In the gathering of upwards of three hundred that filled the flag-draped ball room approximately a half were Chinese and it is probable that every important Chinese and American interest in Shanghai as well as the Chamber of Commerce at Soochow was represented at the banquet. At the main table with Doctor Schurman and Mr. E. S. Cunningham, who presided, were a number of American consular and naval officials, Admiral Chiang Tseng, Chief of the Chinese Admiralty, Mr. Hsu Yuan, Commissioner of Foreign Affairs and other Chinese officials and dignitaries.

Mr. Cunningham gave the opening address saying he had been requested by the American Chamber of Commerce and by the American Association again to give welcome to Doctor Schurman, just as he had done six months ago when Doctor Schurman first came to China and to Shanghai.

In the course of his remarks Mr. Cunningham spoke of Doctor Schurman's activities in the past half year, pointing out that the Minister had inaugurated a new method of procedure in that he was personally visiting all American Consular posts and through extensive travel was placing himself in close personal touch with every part of the country.

Following Mr. Cunningham a welcome to the guest of honor was voiced in the Chinese tongue on behalf of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce and the Chinese Association of Shanghai by Mr. Chang Nieh-yun, who later acted as interpreter for Commissioner Hsu who gave a short address after Doctor Schurman had spoken.

Doctor Schurman's entire address was translated into Chinese as he gave it by Mr. P. W. Tsou, who Doctor Schurman called "one of my boys," as Mr. Tsou, who now is Dean of the College of Agriculture of the National Southeastern University at Nanking, is a graduate of Cornell and attended Cornell when Doctor Schurman was President of the University.

In his address, Dr. Schurman detailed at some length just what the Washington Conference had done for China and then considered some of the things which, he declared, "only China can do for herself."

"As to the results of the Washington Conference," Dr. Schurman said, "I put foremost, as it was certainly foremost in the hearts of the Chinese people, the revision of the capitulatory fiscal regime."

TANAKA, JAPANESE GENERAL, TARGET OF FANATICS; HAD BOMB

Bullets Fly In Neighborhood Of Customs Jetty; Intended Victim Unharmed; Four Wounded, Including Foreigner

One foreign woman—Mrs. W. J. Snyder, of Brazil, Indiana—is dead, a local foreigner—Mr. H. A. Thompson—is seriously wounded and three Chinese, one a police constable, are in hospital with less dangerous injuries as a result of a sensational shooting affray which followed an attempt by two Koreans to assassinate Baron General Tanaka, former Japanese Minister of War, at the Customs jetty yesterday afternoon.

The shooting followed the docking of the tender from the steamer Pine Tree State, which brought Baron Tanaka and his staff to Shanghai following the Baron's visit to Manila to return that of Governor General Wood to Japan. Mrs. Snyder, who arrived by the same ship was on a tour of the world with her husband and they had intended stopping in Shanghai but two days. She had barely stepped out of the Customs examination sheds when the assassins opened fire and she fell with three bullets through her breast. She was rushed to the General Hospital, the Astor House luggage truck being pressed into service, and was hurried to the operating room, but died within a few minutes. The other victims to the fanatics' pistols received their wounds in the mad chase through the downtown streets which finally resulted in the arrest of both men.

The Koreans, Kim Eak Sang, who is 23 years old, and An Soong Nyulin, who is but 23, according to statements made to the police, went to the jetty at 6 o'clock yesterday morning and spent the time between that hour and the tender's arrival shortly after 3 p.m. in patrolling the waterfront. When the tender docked they posted themselves some thirty or forty feet apart at the Hankow Road pathway to the foreshore, Kim standing behind the jetty telephone box with a bomb in one hand and an automatic pistol in the other.

REPUBLICAN ARMY IN ERIN BEATEN BY FREE STATERS

Clash In County Donegal Lasts Three Hours, Report

(Reuter's Service)
London, March 27.—The first fight between members of the Irish Free State forces and Irish Republican Army troops is reported from Newtown Cunningham, County Donegal.

The Republicans arrived in the village in motor cars at midnight on Saturday and commandeered houses overlooking the Police barracks which members of the Free State forces had recently occupied. The Republicans opened a heavy fire to which the occupants of the barracks replied. After a fusillade lasting three hours, the Republicans, of whom a number had been wounded, withdrew, leaving six prisoners.

London, March 27.—The Irish Treaty Bill was read for the third time in the House of Lords today without a division.

London, March 27.—A significant indication of the strength of those opposed to the Treaty in the Irish Republican Army was contained in a statement issued at the close of the Dublin Convention, asserting that 221 of the delegates present represented 49 brigades.

Four members of the Headquarters Staff attended the Convention, which was unanimously in favor of allegiance to the Republic and elected an executive to have supreme control of the army.

Conference Fixes Near East Status

(Reuter's Service)
Paris, March 28.—The full text of the Near Eastern Conference decisions shows that Turkey will be re-admitted to the Asiatic shore of the Dardanelles, with a broad demilitarized zone. Gallipoli, which will also be demilitarized, will be occupied by an Allied force to safeguard the entrance to the Straits. The Allied military authorities recommended a European frontier, giving Rodosto to the Turks and Baba-Eski and (?) Kisekkilissi to the Greeks.

The Ministers offer to establish in Constantinople, within three months of the enforcement of the peace treaty, a commission composed of Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan and Turkey, which will prepare proposals for the revision of the capitulatory fiscal regime.

Kim, with the smoking automatic in his hand, turned into Kiukiang Road. He too was pursued by a large crowd of both foreigners and Chinese. At the corner of Seechuen Road he ran onto the steps of the Park-Union Bank and fired at the throng, the bullet striking a barrow coole in the lower leg. He then turned into Seechuen Road and ran South almost to the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank building, at which point an unarmed Chinese constable tried to stop him. He shot the policeman through the neck and dodged into Reiss and Company's compound doubling back through another entrance into Kiukiang Road. It was at this time that Mr. Thompson was wounded.

Having joined in the pursuit Mr. Thompson caught up with the fugitive, seized him and both went to the ground. The Korean struggled and brought his weapon again into play. The first shot which he fired struck his captor in the chest. Before the man could get away Mr. Horace Gulick, American stockbroker was upon him and though a second bullet narrowly missed the stockbroker's head, grappled with him and disarmed him.

Another foreigner who narrowly missed injury at the hands of the fleeing Kim was Mr. Hayley F. Bell, a bullet passing through the sleeve of his coat. Another bullet struck a ricksha coole in the thigh and still another struck a pony belonging to Mr. H. H. Read, the broker.

The number of shots fired altogether is problematical. An states that he fired only six in all and Kim that he fired but twice

OIL SHORTAGE LOOMS IN U. S. SAYS SURVEY

Available Supply is But Nine
Billion Barrels; Enough
For 20 Years

(Chung Mei News Agency)
Washington, (by mail).—The estimate of the total oil reserves of the United States issued by the United States Geological Survey and described by the director of the survey as the best that has ever been made for that country, indicates that the available supply is only 9,150,000,000 barrels.

This is enough to satisfy the present requirements of the United States for only twenty years, provided the oil can be taken out of the ground as fast as it is wanted. The experts of the survey estimate, however, that the oil cannot all be discovered, much less taken out inside of twenty years, and assert that the time is rapidly approaching when the United States will have to depend more and more on foreign countries to obtain all the oil it needs. They warn the nation that it must avoid waste of oil and make an urgent plea for the development of new methods for the extraction of every ounce of oil from the earth.

The survey just completed embraces a careful study of producing, probable and possible oil-bearing regions in the United States, and the results are considered startling by the eminent geologists identified with the work. The canvass was made by a joint committee composed of members of the United States Geological Survey and the American Association of Petroleum Geologists. It resulted in an inventory estimate that 9,000,000,000 barrels of oil recoverable by means now in use remained in the ground on January 1, 1922.

"The calculations of the oil reserves in the proved and discovered fields are reasonably reliable," the Director of the Survey said, "and those for regions regarded by the geologists as embracing 'probable' future oil fields are based on all the available data and are entitled to high respect, but the committee wishes it most clearly understood that the estimates of oil in 'possible' territory are absolutely speculative and hazardous, and that, although they represent the best judgment of the geologists, they nevertheless may be, at least in part, wildly erroneous.

The questions involved are not only how much a particularly doubtful region will yield, but whether it will furnish any oil whatever.

FIVE BILLION BARRELS IN SIGHT

"Of the total estimated oil reserves of the United States, amounting in round numbers to 9,000,000,000 barrels, 5,000,000,000 may be classified as oil in sight and 4,000,000,000 barrels should be assigned to the heavy-oil group. These oils will be recovered mainly in the Pacific Coast, Rocky Mountain and Gulf States.

The contents of the Lima-Indiana region, which yields oil of a distinctive type, are estimated at 40,000,000 barrels. In general, the so-called paraffin oils of moderate and high grade, as contrasted with the heavier oils, amount in all to about 5,000,000,000 barrels. The estimated reserves of high grade oils of the Appalachian States are about 275,000,000 barrels.

"The estimated reserves are enough to satisfy the present requirements of the United States for only twenty years, if the oil could be taken out of the ground as fast as it is wanted. Should these estimates fall even so much as 2,000,000,000 barrels short of the actual recovery, that error of twenty-two percent would be equivalent to but four years' supply, a relatively short extension of life.

"All the estimates, except those for one region, include only the oil recovered from the ground by present methods, but it is practically certain that the percentage of oil to be recovered from the American oil fields will be vastly increased by the application of new and improved methods of recovery. At present, however, this phase of production may be regarded as in the experimental stage. Little has been definitely determined as to the applicability of 'air pressure,' 'water drive,' 'gas pressure,' 'vacuum extraction,' and other new methods to different regions, with their variation in conditions, or to the increase in production to be counted on from the use of these methods."

Judgment Given In Hospital Case

In a judgment handed down yesterday by Judge Peter Grein of the British Supreme Court in the case of the suit for £14,385.25 brought by a Chinese contractor, Wong Lok-wei, against the General Hospital, the court gave judgment for the contractor as far as damages for delay were concerned, and ordered that an inquiry be held and an account taken of the damages suffered by plaintiff on account of delay in provision of materials. The Judge found for the defendants on the claim as regards steel bars and extra work done on the ground that the plaintiff had not substantiated his claim. Plaintiff had claimed that the defendants had wrongfully charged him for steel bars in excess of the market price.

VICE-MINISTER OF FINANCE ANSWERS ENEMIES' CHARGES

Lu Hsueh-pu Says Complaints Were Dissatisfied Men Of His Ministry

Charges of corruption brought against the financial authorities of Peking were answered in a lengthy manifesto issued in Shanghai by Mr. Lu Hsueh-pu, Vice minister of Finance. Mr. Lu alleged that the organization known as the "People's Financial Investigation Association" consisted of disappointed members of the Financial Adjustment Commission, who have been recently dismissed from the ministry.

The charges were brought by Minister of Justice Tung Kung and the People's Financial Investigation, which, Mr. Lu maintains, is not only an illegal organization, but has for its object a purpose of retaliation.

Mr. Lu's manifesto reads in part as follows:

"The stringency of the national finance began at an early date. Previous to the third year of the Republic (1914), the government lived upon Foreign Loans; before the fifth year of the Republic (1916), on Internal Loans; and before the sixth year of the Republic (1917), on Japanese Loans. Beginning from the eighth year of the Republic (1919), the government was unable to secure loans from the above mentioned sources. Then it gave rise to loans from the various Chinese commercial banks the total amount of which aggregated to about ninety million dollars, which exceeded several times over the total sum of the capital of the various banks.

"Those who are on the side of the government would denounce the high rate of interest of the banks, while those on the side of the banks would declare that the banks are helping to finance the government. In comparison with the ulterior motives of subscribers to the irredeemable Chao Sing Bonds of the late T'ang Dynasty, the people's purchase of Government bonds at present for the sole purpose of investment is a healthy and desirable step, marking a big step forward in the economic development of this country.

"As to the allegation of conspiracy between the financial authorities and the banks, its truth should be proved by evidence. On conviction, the guilty parties should, of course, be brought before the court and punished in accordance with the laws of the Republic; otherwise the prosecution of false charges is unfair and unjust.

"As regards the issue of treasury bills, it is quite within the authority of the Ministry of Finance. Three formerly special treasury bills secured by the salt surplus were issued without going through the cabinet meeting. Last year the same practice was repeated in the issuing of the salt surplus special treasury bills. The premier was only consulted in this case and he stated that he had made a verbal report at the cabinet meeting. Owing to the unusual stringency of the financial market at the end of the lunar year, and as the government is unable to force the people to give their money to it, the only way to get necessary funds to tide over the lunar year is to secure loans from the banks at high rates of interest.

"The loans secured on Bank of China shares were not made during my tenure of office. They were made about a year ago. The loan contracts stipulated that if the government should fail to repay the principal on due date, the creditors are allowed to dispose of the securities without securing the consent of the Ministry of Finance. As the date fell due and as the government was unable to pay the principal and the interest, the creditors were about to carry out the terms in the contract. The creditors do not want to buy or sell these Bank of China shares; what they do want is to get back their principal and interest. After prolonged negotiation with the creditors, it was finally decided to insert notices in newspapers and invite tenders to buy the shares so that any one offering the highest price would get them. The offer would be extended for two weeks so that every chance will be given to the public to take up these shares. Everything in this matter was done with full publicity and I cannot see how the financial authorities can be guilty of misconduct.

"Beginning from the fifth year of the Republic (1916), the nation has been divided into the South and the North, and the number of troops increased enormously. The financial condition of the country became worse than ever; the revenue from the provinces were seized by the provincial authorities and the Central Government had to make all kinds of loans to meet the insatiable demands. Since the nation cannot be unified by military forces much money had to be spent meaninglessly, and of course the people are groaning under the circumstances. This is the fate which the successive financial authorities were made to face during the recent few years."

President Urges Higher Standards

(China Press Service)

Washington, March 27.—Addressing a gathering of the Bible class of Calvary Baptist Church, President Harding said that the churches can render much higher service at this time by encouraging a frank and willing obedience to law. He said: "We must recognize that there is a very apparent tendency for lighter and more frivolous views on the part of citizens of their relations both to church and state."

"This condition," he stated, "is not due entirely to the world war, but the tendency was noticeable before the war to obtain moral laxity. The standards must be shifted to awaken more stern moral fibre."

Am'n School Basketeers Defeat Public School In League Play-Off, 30-20

Chase and Squires Stop
S. P. S. Rushing Lead For Winning Finish

The Shanghai American School and the Shanghai Public School Foreign League basketball teams, which finished out the season's schedule tied for fourth position with records of ten games won and eight lost, played off for the position last night at the Chinese Y. M. C. A. gymnasium with a win resulting for the Americans by the score of 30-20.

The game was hard and well played from the opening whistle. The S. P. S. boys took a 10-2 lead in the first few minutes of play, on some clever team work and fine individual efforts by Brockett, and the gallery thought the game was an easy thing for them. The American boys warmed up to the game soon, however, and by half-time had the lion's end of the score at 14-10.

In the second half, due chiefly to Squires' and Chase's fine work the Americans had the score doubled, with 22-14 up on the Public School. Brockett and Lewis however by hard and good work added the six more points that went to the final score.

The summary follows:

Am'n School 30; Public School 20
Squires RF Brockett
Wiens LF Lewis
Smith C Remedios
Waters RP Mahon
Chase LF Caccia

Goals from floor—Squires 9, Wiens 1, Smith 2, Chase 3, Lewis 4, Brockett 3, Remedios 2, Mahon 1. Goals from fouls—Squires 1, Wiens 1. Referee—Ling.

Police Still Hunt For Holdup Men

Local police operatives are still searching for the quartet of armed bandits who swooped down in an automobile yesterday on a wheelbarrow cooie wheeling a load of silver dollars and shot him dead.

Police have investigated every possible number that may have been "321," the license number given them by another cooie as that on the car used by the robbers, without success. Either the number was given wrong, or a fake number was used, according to police.

The cooie shot by the bandits when they were folled in their attempt to steal the boxes of silver dollars on the barrow, died shortly after being admitted to St. Luke's Hospital.

First Inter-School Debate Is Won By American School

The American School was the winner of the first inter-school debate held yesterday at the school against the Public School. The subject was "Resolved that Constitutional Monarchy is better for China than a Republic." The American School took the negative and was victorious. The judges were Prof. Bennett of the Public School, Mr. H. K. Wright of the Christian Literary Society and Dr. Luther Freeman, pastor of the Community Church.

The winning team was represented by Mr. Waters and Miss Hawk, while the Public School team consisted of Mr. Kewelling and Mr. Nobelman. Mr. Water was placed on the team at the eleventh hour on account of the indisposition of Mr. Fisher, captain of the team, and his delivery at the debate yesterday won him a great deal of favorable comment in spite of the fact that he had only 24 hours within which to conduct the oral combat.

Baer: GINK FOWLER DENIES TRUTH

Claims That He Was Not In Persia When Veal Cutlets
Were Breaded

BY "BUGS" BAER

Queer Sir:
Let's ampulate this courtesy industry and get south to brass carpets. Take a day off and listen. I speak for your friends, your enemies.

I've written to you three times and get no answers. You're only a stamp stealer.

We readers write to you in good faith and you wave our letters in the breezes like the family's red fannel underwear on wash day.

We mean to do nothing but harm. And you return evil for awful.

Who was Gink Fowler anyway? I admit that my man, Granite Jellatine, was nobody. You claim that nobody could whip Gink. Therefore, I claim the championship for my nobody.

Tell 'em about the time that Granite pawned his false tooth, took a toe-hold on a banana skin and grabbed a Kansas cyclone head-on. Yes ma'am. Jell, parried that cyclone in the middle like a toupee. He was in mean humor that day.

During thunderstorms, when Gink was hiding under the sink, Jell used to wait for a flash of lightning to light his cigar on. Some baby.

Fowler was the softest egg in the incubator. Jell once carried a red hot stove around in his suit. He thought it was a snow-ball.

What a man. He looked at the Dead Sea and the Sea came to life enough to say that it was glad it was dead.

Jell used a chisel for a scarf pin. When he shivers, the goose-flesh turns to sandpaper and the carpenter's go to work.

Alibi your man out of this and we'll give you a presidential splinter off an Ohio back porch.

Respectfully nobody's,
H. Dairymple Beaslee,
Dry Goods and Notions.

We're foolish to print letters like this, as stamp stealing is not yet a recognised profession. However, we will answer Mr. Beaslee's compliment and make him prove it.

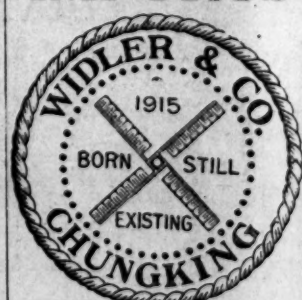

There can be no doubt in our skull that Beaslee is actuated by a pure amateur spirit of honesty. He will be an amateur at that all his life.

Tomorrow we will make Beaslee deny that his statements are lies.

In the meantime, Gink Fowler is still champion of Roughtown beyond proof.

We think that it is best to postpone this argument until all the shooting is over in the California moving picture set.

U. OF C. BASEBALL NINE BIDS FOR GAMES IN SHAI

American university baseball teams which are scheduled to play in the Far East this summer already are bidding for dates with Shanghai.

The University of California team, one of perhaps the best American college baseball talent which will visit local parts this year, have written Manager Gallop of the local club asking for a three game series in June.

The College boys are bringing their place club here at that time and will come with their baseball squad also, provided satisfactory arrangements to finance the journey from Japan here and return can be arranged. Mr. Gallop sent the college men a reply, which he states ought to clinch the series.

Gallop announces that he has several new players lined up for the new season, and if pre-season predictions hold good over Bill and Maloney will be forced to hustle to hold their places on the first team. Twenty five or thirty men are expected out for the first practice. Almost half of them will be new comers, or old China hands who for various reasons were not in the game here last year.

Shanghai Rifle Ass'n Vote Solidly For New .22 Calibre Section

Special Meeting Of Riflemen
Gives Unanimous
Approval

The Shanghai Rifle Association voted unanimously last night to establish a Small Bore Section, which will be devoted entirely to the use of the .22 calibre gun. The section will probably shoot on an allotted range at the Rifle Range, and may also practice at 30 yards at the small indoor range in the Municipal building.

The meeting which was held in the meeting room in the Municipal building, had a good attendance of members of the S. R. A., some of whom were authorised to vote for whole S. V. C. Units. Mr. O. L. Ilbert's paper on .22 Calibre Rifle Shooting was read and a general discussion followed. B. S. A. and Vickers rifles, with sample targets and a plan of the Rifle Range showing the location of the space assigned the Section were shown from the platform.

The question as to just who may join the new section occupied considerable time in the discussion following the reading of the paper, but finally it was decided to leave the point for the committee to decide upon. Though there appeared to be a feeling that large numbers of small bore rifle enthusiasts might wish to enter the section, the general opinion, it would seem was that only members of the local defense forces should be eligible. An exception however would be made, it was indicated, for Swiss and other nationals not having S.V.C. units, and eligible only to enter the Light Horse or Maritime Company units which might not appeal to them.

Prospects last night were that the Small Bore Section of the S. R. A. would have even a larger membership than the parent organization. Mr. K. Ito speaking for the Japanese members of the

Big Baseball Year Predicted By Maier

The 1922 baseball season will be the greatest in the history of the Pacific Coast League, according to the predictions of Ed. R. Maier, owner of the Vernon club of the league. "All attendance records will be smashed in 1922," Maier prophesied, "chiefly because of the many new faces with the various Clubs and because the grade of ball played will be the fastest in the history of our league."

"My chief reason for being so optimistic," Maier declared, "is the fact that every club in the league has strengthened its reinforcements with strange athletes, and say what you will, what the public wants and demands is a change."

S. R. A., and for his community in general said that fifty members and fifty non-members of the association had indicated their wish to take up the small-bore shooting, and the Chinese company gave solid approval to the plan. Aside from these it was announced that forty members and twenty or more non-members had expressed an intention of joining up.

China Must Help Self, Asserts U. S. Minister

restoration to China of the Province of Shantung in its entirety. The American people and the Senate rejected the treaty of Versailles for two or three fundamental reasons, and of these, one was that it legalized the alienation of a vital part of the Province of Shantung. But from the refusal to endorse that alienation of Chinese territory to the restoration of it to China was a long step, so long that few persons six months ago deemed it probable within a lifetime of this generation. Yet President Harding and Secretary Hughes, with the cooperation and aid of the nations represented at the Washington Conference, have accomplished the impossible. The unconditional return of Shantung to China has been provided for; in a few months it will be an accomplished fact.

CHINA SAFEGUARDED
Dr. Schurman then spoke of others of China's gains at the Conference—how her sovereignty had been safeguarded under the treaty adopted by the Powers; how measures had been taken to give the nation a greater revenue through a revision of the tariff; for the abolition of foreign post offices and the restoration of China's sovereign rights.

"Every friend of China," he said, "must recognize that the extraterritorial rights and privileges enjoyed by foreigners are not only an anomaly but a grave derogation from the sovereignty of China. It is equally true that every impartial investigator is compelled to admit that circumstances in the past have justified foreigners in asserting these extraterritorial rights as the only means of adequate protection for their persons and properties."

With the development of China, however, as a member of the family of nations, it is certain that extraterritoriality must in time be abolished. The sooner it can be done with safety the better it will be for the relations between China and foreign nations. When it shall become a question to be determined by an impartial investigation of the facts of the case. The relevant and material facts are not only the possession of modern codes and courts, but the presence of a well trained judiciary and above all the habit of settling disputes on the basis of law and equity alone, without any regard for influence, intimidation, rewards, "bribe," or any other form of gross or insidious, of graft and corruption. These are facts to be investigated, and the Washington Conference has provided for the appointment of a commission of experts to conduct this investigation. The abolition of consular jurisdiction will await their report.

WITHDRAWAL OF TROOPS

"China also resents, not unnaturally, the presence of foreign police and foreign troops on her soil. Their presence was rendered absolutely essential by the Boxer uprising against foreigners in 1900. They ought, however, to be withdrawn as soon as China can protect foreign life and property. This policy was adopted by the Washington Conference. Like so many other phases of the question of the restoration of sovereign rights to China, this one depends on the existence of a united, stable, and effective government. It is to be hoped that the Chinese people will, now that they have succeeded in gaining such large concessions from foreign nations through the Washington Conference, address themselves to the problem of the reform of the administration of their government, the rehabilitation of their public finances, and the reunion of their separate provinces in a single and harmonious republic of China."

"China made further gains in Washington which, though not embodied in the resolutions of the Conference, were the subject of statements before the Conference. Those statements presumably would not have been made but for the meeting of the Conference in Washington, and the spirit of conciliation and accommodation by which it was actuated."

"The gains are very substantial. In the first place England agreed to the return of Weihaiwei to China and France stated her willingness to relinquish control of Kwangchowwan as soon as other leased territories are given up. In this connection China herself officially stated that no more territory would be leased to foreign powers. Finally Japan promised to relinquish important preferential rights which she had exercised in Manchuria and also to withdraw Group Five of the Twenty-One Demands."

"It will be recalled that this was the group in the Twenty-One Demands to which the Chinese people were most bitterly opposed, and although it had been held in abeyance it was still liable to be brought up for future consideration. It is significant of the spirit of the Conference, and a matter of great importance to China, that Group Five was formally withdrawn at Washington. On the other hand, China reserved her right at the same time to bring up the question of the Twenty-One Demands herself for discussion at some future time."

MUST HELP SELF

"So far, I have been speaking of the achievements of the Washington Conference for China. It is surely clear to everybody that the gains of China from the Conference are large, varied, substantial and in many respects highly important. Whoever considers them impartially will recognize that they pretty nearly approach the limit of what foreign nations have it in their power to do for China. No nation can put another nation on its feet. Nations, like individuals, must stand on their own feet. The most that outside nations can do is to make the conditions favorable. This the Washington Conference has done for China. The destiny of China is now in her own hands. It is for the Chinese people alone to determine what that destiny shall be."

"I have the greatest admiration for the Chinese people. They are the most industrious people in the world and the most economical and thrifty. Their cheerful fortitude under adverse circumstances, even with the imminent risk of starvation for millions, is one of the most moving spectacles to be found anywhere among the human family today. When most of the modern races were savages or barbarians China had already achieved a great civilization and produced exquisite creations in letters and the fine arts. They have always been lovers of learning and for centuries they made scholarship the supreme condition of the public service. They have now adopted Western learning and science to supplement their own classics, and applied science is beginning to revolutionize their rule-of-thumb industries. With the economic, intellectual, and moral virtues of the Chinese people, and their untold numbers and with the untouchable and inexhaustible resources of their vast country it is impossible to overestimate the economic and industrial development which the future has in store for China."

WHAT HOLDS CHINA BACK?
"Why then has not China taken the place in the modern world to which the character and the number of her people and their contributions to civilization as well as the extent of her territory and the opulence of her resources entitle her? In the past it was because she shut herself out from the rest of the family of mankind and lived the life of a hermit nation. That seclusion however, has gone, its return is impossible, and the Chinese people know it. China is gradually and patiently adjusting herself to the life of the world of which she is a part and from which, under modern conditions, she could not segregate herself even if she desired to."

"That then is the matter with China? Why does she not achieve her great and manifest destiny? The answer to that question will, I believe, be found in the peculiar circumstances of China's history. For thousands of years the Chinese people kept and paid a Dynasty to govern them. It was as much the business of the Emperor to govern as of the farmer to sow and reap and of the artisan to make his simple wares. But now the Dynasty has gone and, though a Republic has been set up, the people have not yet organized to govern themselves."

"Good government, however, is the supreme condition of healthy national life, of prosperous trade and commerce, of just taxation, of security of life and property, of the just liberty of individuals and the proper autonomy of provinces, departments, and cities. If these things are lacking in China today—if the Chinese people are the victims of bandits and oppressors and endure great wrongs and sufferings—it is because the government of China is disunited and weakened and because its powers have been usurped by irresponsible agents, because armies independent of its control exploit and oppress the people, while the people themselves are powerless and helpless, not having yet learned how to organize their combined strength and how to protect and assert themselves through representative institutions and duly constituted organs of administration."

A REPUBLIC IN FACT
"The great problem before the Chinese people is to make the Republic of China not only a name but a fact. Foreign nations cannot do this for China. China must do it for herself, or it will never be done. The making of the government of China not merely nominally but really a republican government is absolutely necessary to the salvation of China.

"What is necessary to accomplish that result? We can answer that question by considering the essential attributes of a republic. When China possesses them she will be a republic in fact. Until she possesses them she will be a republic in name only, at any rate only in hope and potency."

"The first attribute of a republic is that the people control the government, not the government the people. An autocracy is the rule of one, an oligarchy is the rule of a few, but a democracy is the government of the people, for the people and by the people."

"The second attribute of a republic is representative institutions. In a republic there must be a legislature elected by the people and responsible to the people, and there must be a president either elected directly by the people or by a legislature, congress, or other organization which is elected directly by the people. And both for president and legislators there must be fixed terms of office, so that the people may call them to account for their official acts when they come forward for re-election. A government without a legislature, or without a properly elected president, violates the essential idea of a republic."

CIVIL POWER SUPREME
"The third attribute of a republic is the subordination of all armies within its territory to the civil government of the nation. If the president can control armies irrespective of the will of the legislature which has been duly elected by the people the government, whatever it may be called, is in fact a multiple decentralized military autocracy."

"In the fourth place a national government, whether republican or not, must be one. There cannot be two or more national governments for the same nation. If in any country the powers of the national government are seized and exercised by component parts of the country there is either civil war or a peaceful division of the country. In China today some provinces have renounced allegiance to the national government and set up a rival republic, while other provinces standing apart from both and rendering allegiance to neither, maintain a practical independence each for itself. Politically speaking China is today in a state of disintegration. There is no one government that can speak with authority for the Chinese people. And the disintegration has spread visibly in the last six months."

"The reunification of the country is the first and fundamental requisite for any kind of national government. And in addition to reunification there is necessary for republican government a reduction of the vast armies that now prey upon the country and the complete subordination of the military to the civil power as well as the establishment and operation of representative institutions and the vesting of the ultimate control of government in the hands of the Chinese people."

"There are certain groups or sections of the Chinese people who might take the lead in the great and imperative undertaking of the reunion of the separate and practically independent provinces of China in a single and harmonious republic and in the establishment of representative institutions and the enthronement of the civil power above the military. I refer to the educated classes, the merchants and financiers, the agricultural associations and the trade guilds and other fraternal unions. Here are already germs of government; here are men representative of the Chinese people; here are leaders who may become the nation's statesmen. However the work is done, whoever does it, the one thing necessary for the protection and prosperity of the Chinese people today is the reunification of the country and the realization in practice of the ideals of republican government."

"China is today wrestling with the great problem of the relation of the government of the provinces to the government of the nation. I commend for your consideration the American plan of one federated central government with designated national powers in combination with forty-eight state governments each enjoying complete home-rule."

or what you call provincial autonomy.

"I trust the Chinese people may accomplish the re-establishment of one national government suitably correlated with the provincial governments, reconciling union and strength with local autonomy and freedom, in the very near future. Nothing apart from the welfare of my own country would give me greater pleasure than to witness that consummation while I am United States Minister to your country. If in any way I might contribute to so fortunate a result I would regard it as one of the greatest opportunities and satisfactions of my life."

NON-CHRISTIAN STUDENTS URGED TO DROP ATTACKS

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, March 27.—In reply to the attacks upon the World's Students' Christian Federation by the non-Christian students' organization, the Peking Express, the student daily issued in Peking in English, carries today an editorial characterizing this action as a "foolish attack," stating that it cannot be too strongly condemned and that it is "as absurd as it is unfortunate." After labeling as "absurd" the statement that "Christianity is the handmaid of capitalism and militarism and the great enemy of science," the editorial goes on to say:

"The attack is, we say, unfortunate in its consequences because it tends to create a bad impression of the Chinese people on the minds of those who are attending the World's Christian Students' Conference next month. However one may dislike Christianity and differ with its teachings, one is bound as a gentleman to suppress one's feelings when the student conference is about to meet in Peking."

While saying that he holds no brief for Christianity and Christian missions in China, the editor goes on to point out the effective service rendered to China by the missionaries, particularly in the opening of schools and hospitals. The value of education in Christian schools is shown by the fact that this education has produced leaders such as Dr. W. W. Yen and Dr. C. T. Wang, men as patriotic as any brought up in Government schools. Tsao Yun-tin and Chang Chung-hsiang are pointed to as examples of the graduates of Government schools in contrast to the above two graduates of Christian schools.

The editorial is concluded with this rhetorical question addressed to the student body of Peking: "What a good service the members of the Non-Christian Students' Federation would render to their country if half the energy they are now using against Christianity and Christian followers were expended upon a fight against political corruption such as the one Mr. Tung Kang is now carrying on."

Nanchang, March 25.—Instead of having their breakfast served yesterday morning members of the B. A. T. mess found their "boy" hanging by the neck in the loft. Tebbutt went in after him, but because of the high wind there were no boats and he was unable to get him to the shore alive.

Father and son had had an altercation over the son's gambling. The father had given him a beating, and the son took this most effective means of getting even.

Consolidated Rubber Estates

The annual general meeting of the Consolidated Rubber Estates (1914) Ltd. was held at the offices of the Secretaries, Messrs. A. R. Burkhill and Son, yesterday.

The Chairman said: "Gentlemen: The report and accounts having been in your hands for some time, I will follow the usual course and take them as read."

"Since the last report the planted area remains unchanged and 15 acres have been added to the producing area, bringing the total in bearing up to 1,582 acres."

"The output of rubber for the year was considerably below last year's figure and about 4,000 lbs. below the estimate. This was to some extent expected, owing to the prevalence of Brown Rust on Siliawan Estate which necessitated the resting of a large number of trees. At some periods, as many as 30,000 trees were resting and our Visiting Agent states that the policy adopted in this respect has helped considerably in combating the disease and getting the work well established. As regards other disease, the position is normal on both properties."

"Every possible economy was effected during the year and our visiting agent, Major G. N. Stevens reports that our Estates have made good progress and generally speaking have worked smoothly and well."

"Health has been very satisfactory during the year. The position as regards labor is causing considerable anxiety in the F. M. S. and an acute shortage is anticipated before the end of the year. Every effort is being maintained to ensure a sufficient supply for our own needs and although the force is below its usual strength, we have ample for present requirements."

PRODUCTION COST LOWER
"The f. o. b. cost of production for the year was 5 1/2 d. being a reduction of 3 1/4 d. on last year's figure."

"The estimated output for the current year is 700,000 lbs. and the estimated Cost of Production is 19.37 cents per lb. for Alexandria & Sungai Neboang and 20.05 cents for Siliawan. The "All-in" cost for the total output for both Estates will be approximately 19.72 cents f. o. b. Singapore. Should there be no further decline in the price of rubber, the Estates will be more than self supporting and with the forward sale of 4 tons monthly for the whole of 1922 at a price of 43 cents per lb. f. o. b. Singapore, a profit on the year's working is assured."

"Dealing with the accounts there is very little for me to say. The average price realised from the sale of our crop was 7 1/4 d. per lb. against 9d. for the previous year. It has been a most difficult year and taking all things into consideration, I think we may consider ourselves fortunate in coming out with such a comparatively small loss on the year's working. Our loss for the year amounts to Tls. 12,404.44 which deducted from the amount brought forward from last year still leaves us with a credit balance of Tls. 40,418.48 which the Directors recommend carrying forward to next year's accounts."

CHANGES IN STAFF
"One or two changes have been made on the staff. Mr. Carmichael has succeeded Mr. Wilkins as manager of Siliawan and Mr. Ericson has assumed management of Alexandria and Sungai Neboang, both properties, however, being under the direct control of Mr. Carmichael."

"Before concluding, I would like to take this opportunity of recording the Directors' appreciation of the good work done by the estate managers and their staffs and our Penang Agents, Messrs. Kennedy and Co."

"If any shareholders have any question to ask, I shall be pleased to answer to the best of my ability."

The report and accounts for the year ended December 31, 1921 were unanimously approved.

Mr. C. R. Burkhill was confirmed in his appointment as Director of the Company.

Mr. G. M. W. Hummel was re-elected a Director of the Company.

Messrs. Lowe, Bingham and Matthews were re-elected auditors for the ensuing year.

Former Prohibition Director Indicted
(China Press Service)
Philadelphia, Pa., March 27.—The Grand Jury today indicted William C. McConnell, former Prohibition Director of Pennsylvania and 46 others, including several of McConnell's associates, charging conspiracy to defraud the United States Government.

It is alleged that bootleggers obtained several hundred thousand gallons of liquor in the 70 days that McConnell held office, through fraudulent withdrawal permits.

McConnell is a prominent local politician and gained prominence last January in his fight against Boss Boies Penrose when the latter recommended that he resign.

Yesterday's Tragedy

THE inconsolable grief that weighs upon the heart and mind of Mr. W. J. Snyder, of Brazil, Indiana, husband of the blameless woman who yesterday forfeited her life to an assassin's insanity, should be slightly assuaged by the knowledge that his wife did not die in vain.

It will perhaps be difficult for the distracted husband to understand that any good result can flow from the tragic circumstance that a madman's fury, by a mere twist of outrageous fortune, had to be visited upon one so utterly remote from the issues that had created a seething gulf of hatred between the murderer and his intended victim, and he will ask, naturally, why one who bore not the slightest ill will toward the Korean in whose disordered mind the idea of a personal vengeance for a national wrong had found lodgment should have been chosen, at such awful cost, to bear the whole brunt of the storm born of his own and his conquered homeland's long smoldering resentment against the Japanese yoke.

The only answer that anybody can give him for that question is that God moves in a mysterious way his wonders to perform. But is that answer entirely futile?

The story of human liberty is a history of sacrifice, of lives laid down, willingly and unwillingly, directly and indirectly, in order that men and women might be lifted from the sullen, lethargic indifference which distinguishes the line of least resistance that is so easy for all of us to follow, into that swift and thrilling action by which alone liberty can be achieved and once achieved, retained.

If, in the ordinary course of events, Mrs. Snyder had quietly embarked upon her inevitable journey to that undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveler returns, relatively few would have noted her passing. But for her different fate was reserved, and with that fate what man can deny, in the light of the endless stores of treasure and the oceans of human blood that have been poured out that the torch of human liberty might be kept burning and aloft, that a Providential message was written across her life, to be read by the world upon the day of her relinquishment of it?

Mrs. Snyder's life was snuffed out yesterday, and today the world is again reminded that the iron heel of Japan rests with crushing, relentless weight upon a nation that committed no crime beyond that of cherishing a desire to live its own life in its own way—beyond cherishing the thing which to them, as to other nations, is dearer than life itself, namely, freedom.

Perhaps the heel will not be lifted by reason of the fact that Mrs. Snyder lies dead. But there will be other compensations, nevertheless. For one thing the world's slowly gathering wave of resentment against the idea of a strong nation oppressing a weak one will gather, through her death, just a little bit more momentum and volume, so that, by the time other Mrs. Snyders have made the supreme sacrifice, consciously or unconsciously, other tyrant heels that are poised and ready to drop on defenseless necks will be drawn back where they belong, and held there while the world marches on to a new and better conception of international relationships.

A great many disputes have arisen and will continue to arise over the question of contributory guilt for the causes that led, eventually, to the Great War, but as time goes by there will be no gainsaying the fact that the greatest single result of that war was the breaking of the grip of alien hands on small nations that wanted nothing more than to be left alone.

To the north of us, at the present time, there are millions of Russians whose greatest fear is that their country—their homeland—may be wrested from them by the ambitious, imperialistic, and militaristic empire on their East, and it should be some compensation to the broken hearted husband who today sits alone with his grief in this city, thousands of miles from his Indian home, to know that the death of his wife, by reason of the manner of it, constitutes one of the incidents necessary to thwart the covetousness of the Tokio Prussians, and to force them to remain on their island, where they belong.

Mr. Snyder can reflect, therefore, that the life of the good woman who bore his name was not snuffed out uselessly. He can—and should—take pride, in the midst of his sorrow, in the knowledge that the angels welcomed her as one of that rare company whose lives were laid on the altar of human freedom.

Lady Astor Exhorts Women To Progress

BY LADY ASTOR, M.P.

First Woman Member of British Parliament.

London, Jan. 14.—Out of the havoc and destruction of the great war which has passed over the world like a cyclone, leaving social, political and spiritual changes in its wake, certain new hopes are at length beginning to grow. As we watch them our dream of a better world is beginning to grow, too.

One of these new conceptions is the ideal of co-operation between nations, the road to which has been pointed by such great events as the Irish settlement this week. Another is the ideal of co-operation between men and women as comrades, working together on an equal plane for the good not only of their homes but of humanity. These two forces, the new international idealism and the new conception of a human relationship, are, I believe, closely interrelated, and may, therefore, welded together, make a lasting impression on civilization.

In the series of articles which follows I want to appeal to men as well as to women, to bring out some of the consequences and some of the possibilities of this comradeship of men and women and an immense force that lies in the awakening consciousness of women.

WOMEN AND NATIONS

When the minds of people of all countries are turning toward peace and are eagerly welcoming any practical attempt at real peace-making, I would ask you to consider the connection between the new spirit among women and the new spirit between nations. Women are, I think, the natural and practical idealists.

I seem to be their special task to hand on the moral and spiritual standards of their country and of their age to the next generation. They are, in fact, the very core of the civilisation of each nation, with its life in their keeping. The new call which has come to them does not brush this great trust aside, it merely widens its scope.

If, as we are so often told, woman's place is the home, the opportunity has now come to her to make the home indeed her own concern. It is her responsibility to see that her home is a safe refuge for her children, and if she is to do this she must look outside her home to the affairs of her town, her country, the world.

A spark that kindles and burns in some far corner of the world may light a fire that consumes her own children. That is why it is very much her business to take her share in bringing the ideals of right conduct into public affairs, into national and international politics. This new call to women to widen the horizon of their homes has come to them at a time when moral force is the only force that can save this world from confusion.

IDEALISM NEEDED

Never before was idealism more needed in politics. For the war has bred disillusionment in every country. Never before was there a better chance of putting idealism into practice. This, to me, is the greatest and deepest reason why women should come out into public life whether they come as voters, as members of councils, boards, conferences, parliaments or senates.

They can bring with them into the dust of the arena the fresh wind of a new impulse. They can bring into a very weary and cynical world that mothering spirit which all men recognise in women and which, if it is needed in homes, is needed also in the society at large. They can if they choose help to sweep clean the dark places of the world.

If women have a keen spiritual perception and a double dose of moral courage, as I believe they have, the need of the world today is a challenge they can hardly refuse to face. And the stirring of the international idealism of which I speak is an instrument and an opportunity which is available today, but which may not be available tomorrow. There are many signs already that women are responding to both national and international needs.

WOMAN-MADE LAWS

In the English-speaking and the Scandinavian countries the part that women can and should play as citizens is being fully realised and already their influence is being felt in the laws that are being passed dealing with children, with health, with morality. In all countries women are awakening, if they have not already awakened, to the claims of citizenship.

They are realising that they are human beings first and women afterward. Certainly in all countries there is growing a tremendous will to peace among women, and it is inevitable that this impulse should affect the policy of the nations.

Who can doubt, for instance, that the campaign carried on by the women's organisations in the United States influenced both the summoning of the Washington Conference and the program which was put before it? Who can doubt, either, that the public explanation that a desire for peace by the women of all countries had its effect upon the statesmen representing those countries at Washington?

There are, I think, three things which women will need to take account of if their influence in world politics is to be permanent or effective. In the first place we must live up to our reputation as idealists. I am informed enthusiasm often defeats itself.

Take, for instance, the question of world peace or limitation of armaments. The Washington Conference has taught us that a yearning for peace is not enough. We must be prepared to deal with concrete issues.

In order for us to make a practical effective it is necessary for us to know the facts and arguments used on both sides and to look at the problem from an international and not only a national standpoint.

In the second place, we, as women, must beware of swelled heads. Pride goes before a fall all the world over, and it is absurd for women to take up a position of moral superiority unless they are prepared to deserve it.

We, too, have our faults and shortcomings. We, too, are responsible for wars, however much we condemn the statesmen who lead us into war, so long as we speak evil of our neighbors or cannot live at peace with our own household, for quarrels and wars spring from the same roots.

Third, we must try and organise the expression of our opinion. Women are said to be bad at combining. I do not think they are. But certainly we shall need to organise in our different communities as men have had to organise, if we are to influence public opinion.

The days of autocratic kings are over. It is the day of the people. And the voice of the people whether they be men or women, cannot make itself heard through individual channels, but only through organisations.

I am quite sure we do not want to form a woman's party, still less any anti-man organisations. This seems to me stupid and useless and contrary to common sense. Men and women live together, work together and get along together. They have ultimately the same interests and the same needs, and though women have, as I think, a special contribution to make and their own ways of doing things, their point of view is not one which is antagonistic to men, but only one which men in the stress of business and war have rather forgotten.

We need also to organise so that we may consult together and benefit by each other's experience. For we are new to politics and we have much to learn. We need to organise further in many countries to press for the extension of our opportunities as citizens, of our rights as parents and guardians as well as for the other questions which women have specially at heart, and if we are to turn to its full account the world-wide desire of women for peace we must organise that too.

In England and the United States special parliamentary consultative committees representing the chief women's organisations have been set up so as to facilitate joint action, and in both these countries as well as in nearly every other land the great international council of women and the international organisation of working women have their branches.

Women cannot by themselves hope to do what men by themselves have failed to do. But we have a great chance today if only we can take it. The call of this century is a call for world citizenship. The driving force of the new spirit which is stirring among women can be harnessed to the new international idealism which is rising out of the ruins of the war and which if it can be harnessed to governments and parliaments the dreams and hopes with which we begin this new year may, I believe, be realised.

Maurice Hewlett Thanks The Press For Letting Essay Survive

BY MAURICE HEWLETT

(Distinguished British Author In An Article In The Nation)

We owe the press many things, not all of them gladly; but for one thing at least we may be its thankful debtors, and that is that it has allowed, if not engaged, the essay to survive.

From the days of Addison the essayist has been a journalist too, and that which cost Montaigne a lifetime has thereafter been compressed within the year, if not to its advantage, then to its perennity. That is an accident of public economy, however, which is beside the matter, for both Montaigne and Bacon were very capable of journalism for all their leisurely habit. One was deeply versed in affairs; the other kept a wary eye for them and knew, as we put it, the time of day with the best.

But politics was not Montaigne's business, and, if he had been living today, he would be one of our best "middle" practitioners, a writer deliberately desultory, occasional, "fluctuating and various," as he said.

I could name the weekly which he would adorn, and those which would have none of him. And the daily also. There is but one. I think he would be welcomed there. If one had to define the essay it would be as the written, after-dinner monologue of a well-read, well-satisfied man of, at least five-and-forty. Years don't matter; the spirit of years matters very much.

You must be mature enough to pontificate, and wise enough to do it tactfully. You must not be long, you should not be difficult; you may be discursive, but not abrupt. You should eschew eloquence and outrageous fun; you should subserve the chuckle. You may bode the eyes, not drown them. You may not take sides, nor improve the occasion. Your teaching must be by the way. "Je n'en sçais rien," Montaigne says, "je raconte." You will be allusive, of course—all full men are so; and you will quote freely, often inaccurately. Anecdote should be your salt, but I don't think quotation should be your pepper.

It was Montaigne, undoubtedly, and, like his anecdotes, almost entirely of one people and language. It was very well for his auditory of the moment, which with him, spoke Latin at least as well as French—he himself spoke it better. But that impracticable people, the Romans, have receded far from us. Neither Troy nor Rome stands where it did.

Our essayists have since answered other nations. First it was Israel, and you had Abishale and Aboliah, Hophni and Phinehas, walking familiarly in the next it was Shakespeare; and now we have more Keats than we really need.

But certainly we are more temperate, or more ignorant, than our fathers; and at least we are shorter. So had I better be.

American Girls Neatest Dressers, Says London Critic

London, Feb. 4.—Although the American woman can wear her clothes to better advantage than the average English woman, the latter shines wherever she may be, according to Lady Henry, an American-born woman who is the widow of an Englishman.

"I think," said Lady Henry, "that so much depends on the individual. Personally I think a beautiful English woman shines wherever she may be."

"But, in any case, I do not think that clothes count for as much now as they did before the war. English women who did war work are, perhaps, not so supercilious about their clothes as they were. I think they have found out that more depends on personality than on clothes."

"Another point is that so many of the American women one sees are merely passing through from one place to another. Naturally, they wear the kind of clothes which are suitable for traveling—that is, 'trig, smart tailor-mades.'"

An American business man who visits London twice a year added his quota of comparison.

"What always strikes me about English women, when I return to London after three or four months in New York, is their restful appearance. It seems to me that their clothes express some quality of this kind which the majority of our women lack."

"Americans abroad are naturally in what may be called 'luggage kit,' English women in their own country are not under the necessity of overdoing a little bit of broken lines and bunched-up, to express the thing untechnically, which, after all, have their own charm."

The Vagabonds Of The Solar System

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS
(Eminent Astronomer And Authority On Subjects Of Scientific Interest)

Can you explain the reason why the orbits of comets differ so much from the orbits of planets? If comets are subject to the law of gravitation what causes them to travel so far into space?—J. W. P.

orbits of comets and those of planets is difficult to explain, but that the supposition which we are compelled to make concerning the place of origin of the comets in order that they should have orbits so elongated leads to extraordinary conclusions.

Interfering attraction of the planets, and so being turned into relatively short, closed paths which keep them revolving permanently around the sun.

The later view is that the comets originated in connection with the solar system, but far outside the outermost planets, and that they have individually been drawn in toward the sun, and in obeying his attraction have fallen into very elongated orbits, which, however, as already explained in connection with the older view, have in many cases by the interference of the planets been changed into shorter and more rounded paths.

The later view assumes that what we might call the seeds of comets are small patches of nebulous or meteoric matter, having a common origin with the sun and its planets, but scattered far abroad in surrounding space, though sharing with the system in its motion toward the constellation Hercules.

The sun, together with the planets and the scattered stuff of the comets, moves as if all were carried along by a mysterious current in space.

This common motion of a group of bodies, large and small, is by no means a novelty in the stellar heavens. There are many drifting systems of stars, all the members of any one system travelling the same way, though the different systems go different ways. A beautiful example of such a system, whose members appear to us close together like a flock of birds, is furnished by the Pleiades.

I mention this simply to show that there is nothing abnormal about the supposed common motion of the sun with far scattered matter surrounding it in space. Of course we must assume that this matter, although much more distant than any of the planets, nevertheless lies nearer to the sun than to any of the other stars, else it would not remain under his governance.

Now, to explain the difference between the orbits of the planets and those of the comets. The planets are all relatively near the sun, and all travel around the sun in the same direction. In orbits that are not very far from circular, except in the case of some asteroids.

With a similar exception, the orbits all lie nearly in the same plane. The nearer planets all turn on their axes in the same direction. A study of these conditions leads irresistibly to the conclusion that the planets originated by a common process going on near to the center of the system.

On the other hand, the comets travel around the sun in all possible directions, and in all sorts of places, in very elongated and often excessively elongated orbits, and offer no evidence of having been formed as members of an orderly system. A considerable number of small comets, it is true, now travel around the sun in quite regular periods varying from three to ten years in length, but these have evidently been "captured" and turned from their original orbits by the attraction of some of the planets, especially the giant Jupiter. All comets seem, as far as records can tell, for the first time, come in toward the sun on paths that appear to be not very different from hyperbolas, which are not closed curves like ellipses and circles.

These elongated paths in themselves show that the comets have travelled very far before reaching the confines of the planetary system. They are drawn in toward the sun almost as directly as a stone drops under the pull of gravity. Yet, their motion is not in a straight line, and as they get near the sun the curve of their real path carries them past the solar globe—sometimes almost grazing it. After having, by virtue of the tremendous velocity that they have acquired, rushed close round the sun like a swung partner in a dance, they hurry away again, somewhat as a pendulum, having attained its greatest velocity at the lowest point, swings past and rises once more.

Mathematical considerations show, however, that the paths of comets paying their first visit to the sun cannot be hyperbolas, as they seem to be, nor parabolas, but are probably extremely elongated ellipses.

Nevertheless a comet may be thrown away in a hyperbola by the influence of a planet, and then it could go to the stars, though it did not originally come from them. This appears to have happened to at least one comet which, travelling with nearly parabolic velocity, came up close behind the planet Jupiter and had its velocity increased by Jupiter's pull until it passed the parabolic limit and became hyperbolic. Such are the mathematical romances of comets.

Shanghai Seremban Estates

The seventh annual general meeting of the Shanghai Seremban Rubber Estates, Ltd., was held yesterday afternoon at the head office of the company, Messrs. J. A. Wattie and Company, 10 Canton Road.

Dr. R. S. Ivy presided supported by Messrs. A. K. Cradock, F. Sallou, M. Speelman, C. L. Stewart (directors) and F. Scarborough (secretary).

The notice convening the meeting and auditors' report having been read, the Chairman said: "Gentlemen, I ask you to take the Report and Accounts which have been in your hands for some time as read."

"In common with most Companies operating in the Straits, I regret to say we have a loss on the year's working of Tails 7,634.15, but in view of the extremely low prices obtainable for rubber during the year under review, we may be grateful that a worse position is not revealed."

We commenced 1922 with an overdraft at our Bankers of Tails 8,679.77 and we owed to sundry creditors, Tails 3,809.48, against which we have cash and stocks amounting to Tails 8,405.78, or in other words an actual adverse position of Tails 4,082.47. This is not a very large sum and the position would quickly turn in our favor with rubber even at 30 cents. The Bank overdraft is secured by a mortgage on the property.

"It is difficult if not impossible to prophesy the trend of prices, but one could argue and hope that 25 cents must be somewhere near rockbottom and that at this level there is more room for a reasonable rise than a further fall.

CARGO SOLD FORWARD
"We have sold forward 2 tons per month January to June at 41 cents per lb., which will help to average up a little on today's low price for the balance of our crop."

"During 1921 every possible economy that could be safely instituted was put into operation on the estate with the gratifying result that the cost of production was only half that of the previous year, and moreover we are told that these drastic economies have not in any way interfered with the efficiency of the estate, thus showing that adversity has forced all concerned to put forth greater effort and to adopt new methods which might never have been thought of had times continued prosperous."

"Tapping for the greater part of the year continued on the daily quarter cut but towards the end of the year alternate day tapping on halves was established in some fields and this change will be carried on wherever possible during the current year."

"The factory is reported to be in good order, but the smoke house will have to be replaced at some subsequent period when funds are available. All other buildings are reported in good order with, of course, minor details which always require attention."

"Although our labor force decreased considerably during the year, the estate seems to have retained sufficient for all requirements and the health of the rubber on the whole was satisfactory."

"Weeding was carried out monthly, the property in this respect being kept in good order at less than half the cost of 1920. No further thinning out was done and generally the estate is reported as remarkably free from disease."

THANKS TO STAFF
"Our thanks are due to the Estate Manager, Mr. Gilchrist, the Singapore agents, Messrs. Barker & Co., Ltd., and to the secretaries for the good work accomplished during an anxious and trying period."

"The accounts as presented leave very little for me to comment upon. No new capital expenditure was incurred, the buildings, factory, and other assets have all been written down to nominal figures leaving no need to provide for any further depreciation for the year under review."

"The amount brought forward from last account was Tails 3,543.26 and after deducting this figure from the loss of Tails 7,634.15 on 1921, the loss on the year's working is reduced to a deficit of Tails 4,090.89 which the Board recommend be carried forward to the new account."

"The average rate of exchange for the year at which conversion of Straits currency into Tails was made was 65, whilst the closing rate for rubber in stock etc. was 67, against 38½ and 53½ for 1920."

"With these remarks, I beg to propose Resolution No. 1 was: 'That the Report of the Directors and Statement of Accounts for the year ended December 31, 1921, as presented be adopted and passed.'"

This was passed.

The following resolutions were also passed:

That the report of the Directors and statement of accounts for the year ended December 31, 1921 as presented be adopted and passed.

That Dr. R. S. Ivy be re-elected a Director of the Company.

That Messrs. G. H. and Thomson be re-elected Auditors to the Company at Shanghai at a remuneration of Tls. 150 for the ensuing year.

Gompers Puts Onus On "Autocrat" Mine Owners

(China Press Service)

Washington, D. C. March 27.—Samuel Gompers, head of the American Federation of Labor, in a statement issued today declared that the autocratic attitude of the mine owners is forcing the strike.

Turk Consults Angora As To The Armistice

(Reuters Service)

Constantinople, March 27.—The Sublime Porte, replying to the Allies' proposed armistice, points out that as the question does not concern its jurisdiction solely, it has forwarded a copy of the Note to Angora in conformity with the wish expressed by the Allies.

The Porte also points out that the evacuation of Thrace, including Adrianople, was not mentioned.

(Reuters Service)

Paris, March 27.—The proposals of the Allied Ministers in regard to the settlement of the Near-Eastern problem have been submitted to the parties concerned who have been invited to send within three weeks their representatives to a town, which will be decided upon later.

A French semi-official statement shows that Gallipoli and Adrianople have been left to Greece.

Britain To Sell Warships To Finns

(Reuters Service)

London, March 27.—With reference to an earlier message, it now appears that the Admiralty is prepared to sell second-hand destroyers to Finland, for breaking up purposes only.

The Admiralty has not offered to supply new destroyers, but merely has informed Finland that she is free to place orders in Britain for new destroyers, which will now be treble the pre-war cost.

PREMIER RETURNS

(Reuters Service)

London, March 27.—Mr. Lloyd George has returned to London.

SUN AND CHANG IN CONCERT TO CRUSH WU, BELIEF

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, March 25.—The crux of the political situation seems to have transferred itself from Mukden to Hunan where the majority of reports indicate the invasion of Dr. Sun's vanguard and if not a combination with the commanding general of that province, General Chao, at least a passive agreement permitting the Southern armies to attack Kiangsi through Hunan without interference. This is held to be the first fruit of the agreement reached by Dr. Sun with Chang Tso-lin during the recent visit of Dr. C. C. Wu to Mukden. General Chao was never very favorable to Wu Pei-fu and he is reported to have received directions from Mukden to aid the Southern forces in their advance.

In the meantime disturbances in Yunnan have been widely advertised in Peking, but have not affected the plans of the Northern expedition. The agents of Dr. Sun Yat-sen in Shanghai have even taken the change in Yunnan to be a sign favorable to their plans. General Chang and Dr. Sun, having as it is conceded reached an agreement, the question now is how can they put their forces together and how can they actually carry out the theoretical vice maneuver against Wu Pei-fu, the latter being able to keep them sufficiently apart and attack one of them at a time.

Military intelligence reports from Hankow incline to this theory and Wu Pei-fu who is waiting for developments has recently withdrawn most of his troops to the North bank of the Yangtze. In the event of the advance of the Southern armies he will first attack Chang Tso-lin leaving a small force to hold the North bank of the river. He has apparently no intention of holding Wuchang which is of little strategic value to him and is so isolated by the river as to render communication and transport of supplies difficult.

Wu Pei-fu must strike at the North first before Chang Tso-lin can carry out his proposed drive upon Footingfu, cutting across the line between Peking and Tientsin. The war moves are clear if the politics are involved, but in spite of the elaborate preparations it is still held that the danger of actual hostilities is past at least for some time yet.
